Dear Doctor Wiley:

We are looking for a fellowship-trained, board-eligible or board-certified neuropathologist to join our 19 member group of surgical pathologists in a large, academically oriented surgical pathology practice.

We need a neuropathologist to share diagnostic neuropathology responsibilities with one other full-time, board-certified neuropathologist already on staff, and to participate in general surgical pathology sign-out. Seven neurosurgeons provide approximately 200-250 brain tumor specimens per year. We process approximately 90 muscle biopsies and 5-10 nerve biopsies per year. We offer a full battery of enzyme histochemical procedures, electron microscopy, and immunohistochemistry when indicated for the muscle biopsies, and electron microscopy and nerve teasing procedures when indicated for the nerve biopsies. Approximately 90 autopsy brains are available per year for diagnosis and teaching. There is a weekly brain cutting conference with clinicopathologic correlation. There is a weekly multidisciplinary neuroscience conference and monthly pediatric neurology conference.

The Department of Anatomic Pathology at William Beaumont Hospital is among the busiest surgical pathology laboratories in the country. Last year, we processed approximately 60,000 surgical cases and a similar number of cytology specimens. We share a training program of 12 residents with the Department of Clinical Pathology, and we also have a certified fellowship in cytopathology. Many of our staff surgical pathologists have additional training or board certification in sub-specialty areas, including cytopathology, dermatopathology, neuropathology, renal biopsy pathology, urologic pathology, gynecologic pathology and pediatric pathology.

William Beaumont Hospital is a 1068-bed hospital located in Oakland County, Michigan. All pathologists in our department lecture medical students and hold academic title at Oakland University William Beaumont Medical School. The founding Dean, Dr. Robert Folberg, is a renowned ophthalmic pathologist and maintains an active consultation practice in the department.

Salary, incentive, and benefits are very competitive. Credit toward senior parity status is given for fellowship training and practice experience.

We would like to fill this position as soon as possible, but we recognize that qualified, board-eligible candidates may not be available until July, 2017. If you are aware of anyone who might be interested, or whom you would recognize as a worthy candidate (even if not currently looking for another position), please contact me by letter at the address on the bottom of page one, by telephone (248-898-9022) or by e-mail (Mitual.Amin@beaumont.edu).

Sincerely,
