

ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF PATHOLOGY
DIVISION OF NEUROPATHOLOGY
UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

The Department of Pathology of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine will be seeking an academic neuropathologist for full-time appointment at the Assistant or Associate Professor level (tenure or non-tenure depending on qualifications) to replace a retiring neuropathologist. The successful applicant will participate in our tripartite mission of clinical service, teaching and research. Neuropathology is an active service with a strong relationship with neurosurgery, neurology, neuroradiology, neuro-oncology and neuroscience. There is a full spectrum, high volume of clinical service activities divided between 5 faculty members. The Division has an abundance of clinical and research space and resources.

The anatomic pathology facilities, including the faculty offices, sign-out rooms, conference rooms, gross dissection room and histology laboratories have been completely renovated and are thoroughly modern.

The successful candidate should possess strong diagnostic skills, be capable of participating in the service responsibilities of a busy and state-of-the-art neuropathology service and have a strong commitment to an academic career including resident education (UPMC maintains a Neuropathology fellowship with 4 ACGME approved positions) and medical student teaching. Established diagnostic expertise, a record of scholarly publications and experience in translational research is highly desirable. Board certification in Anatomic Pathology and Neuropathology is required as is eligibility for unrestricted medical licensure in Pennsylvania. Academic rank and compensation will be commensurate with the level of experience and scholarly accomplishments.
